Hi Samara, I have spoken with Risk and Compliance around face mask usage, They said there is no clinical evidence to support that mask wearing deprives the brain of oxygen and as it is a Government directive, it is mandatory to wear them while in service. You are free to see your GP regarding this and if they provide a certificate to say you are unable to wear one, this would then be discussed by upper management. They asked me to send you the attachment that is with this email also. Thanks
Kind regards
